OUR OPINION: Toyota shows power of regional collaboration

Ten years have passed since an announcement that would have a deep impact on

Northeast Mississippi. Leaders from Toyota gathered at a ceremony at Tupelo High School's Performing Arts Center on Feb. 27, 2007 and said the company would open its eighth North American assembly plant at a site in Blue Springs in Union County.

The news was the culmination of years of hard work by area economic developers who had forged a unique partnership. Leaders in Pontotoc, Union and Lee counties came together to form the PUL Alliance, pooling their expertise, resources and efforts in order to increase their chances of bringing a major industrial project to Northeast Mississippi.

While the collaboration seems obvious now, it was trend-setting at the time. When the Mississippi Development Authority approved the formation of the PUL Alliance in 2003, it became the first regional alliance recognized by the state. Yet it just continued a long tradition in Northeast Mississippi of people putting aside individual interests and working together to achieve something far greater in scope. ### OUR OPINION: Toyota's regional, state impact continues

Posted on March 17, 2017 by Daily Journal in Opinion

The Center for Automotive Research, a national think tank, recently completed a study that detailed Toyota's contributions in Mississippi, the top highlights of which include $960 million invested in facilities and 6,700 jobs – direct and indirect – throughout the state, among other items.

Since then, Toyota and its employees have contributed to the communities in our region significantly. Continue reading here.

Why do you give?

Judy and I have been making our charitable contributions for years through our Advised Fund at CREATE - whether it be to the church, St. Jude Hospital, our high school alma mater or to unexpected needs such as tornado relief in Tupelo recently and in neighboring Smithville a few years ago. CREATE handles all of the details and paperwork and, most important, respects and follows our charitable wishes to the letter.
